BEATTIE CASE AT WEEK'S END

Prosecution Makes Situation Serious for Young Man.

DEFENSE TO SUPPORT HIS TALE

All Beattie's Lawyers Have to Cling to, It Seems, Is His Own Story. of Tall, Whiskered Hold-Up Man.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 28.—Henry C. Beattie, Jr., sat once more in a cell in the Richmond jail and for long hours his lawyers, Harry M. Smith, Jr., and Hill Carter, went over with the young prisoner the infinite details of the issue which means life or death with him.

The conference was designed more to fortify Beattie against the ordeal of the next few days when the heaviest weight of the prosecution will be hurled against him, than through any pressing necessity on the part of the lawyers.

The result of the first week of this young man's trial has been serious for him, and before the prosecution rests its case there will be much grave concern in his mind. He must know also that all his lawyers have to build on in his defense is the weird story of a tall whiskered man suddenly stepping out of the shadows of the forest on Midlothian pike and without reason, almost without words, as Beattie has told the story, slaying his wife as she sat by his side in an automobile. Such of the prosecution's case is before the court already as to indicate that when Beattie's counsel attempts to defend his story, which is the only line of defense that seems to be indicated now, they will be undertaking the most difficult task in the recent history of Virginia jurisprudence.

As the case stands before the jury at this beginning of the second week of the trial the prosecution has completed its task of pointing out the contradictions and incongruities in Beattie's story of the murder. That was its first undertaking; the second, which will probably come early this week, is the first step in constructive testimony. This will be the introduction of evidence directly fixing the purchase of the shotgun, which is claimed to be the weapon of assault, on Henry Beattie. The third and last step in the prosecution will be to establish the motive for the crime, which the commonwealth seeks to fix upon him.

Through Paul Beattie, the cousin of the accused, the prosecution will first identify the shotgun as that which was in the possession of the prisoner three days before July 18, the time of the murder.

The line of constructive evidence that the prosecution will advance within the next two or three days dealing with the establishment of a motive for the shooting will introduce Beulah Binford, her mother, and the inmate of a disorderly house. This will be the most uncertain feature of the prosecution.

The commonwealth's attorneys will introduce a letter Mrs. Beattie had written a short time before her death in which she told her father, Robert V. Owen, of Dover, Del., of the infidelities of her husband and of her intention to quit him. Mr. Owen had even started for Richmond to assist his daughter in her difficulties when he read in a paper an account of her death.

ELDER PAYS $4.70 BUT SAYS HE GOT HIS MONEY'S WORTH

Homer Elder this afternoon pleaded guilty in justice court to a charge of assault and battery preferred by Jas. Caplin and paid the costs, $4.70.

The trouble started Saturday forenoon, according to Elder's story, when he was drawing ties from the railroad track near the line between the farm of Dan Ellsworth, for whom he is working, west of Ypsilanti, and James Caplin. Caplin and two sons asserted that a pile of ties which Elder started to haul away belonged to him and after a heated argument the matter was temporarily adjusted by blows. Elder says he had the best of the fight, however, and it was worth the money.

MANY ATTEND THE FUNERAL OF PROMINENT MAN

The funeral of Rumble Wortley, which was held Saturday in Stony Creek, was the largest ever witnessed in that community. He had been prominent both in the county and church, having been a member for forty years of the Methodist church of Stony Creek and for a long period of years a trustee. The Methodist pastor, Rev. Among the mourners from a distance were: Mr. and Mrs. George Lockwood, Mr. and Mrs. George Davis, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Wortley, Mr and Mrs. F. W. Horner of Ypsilanti, Mrs. Wm. Gillson and Mrs. Floyd Tabor of St. Johns; Charles Wortley of Walkerville, Canada; Mrs. Harriet Wright Dundee; Mr. and Mrs. Willis Clark, Mooreville; Mr. and Mrs. Ed. WM. WEBB SAILS FOR U. S.—MANY PASSENGERS HELD UP BY STRIKE

William Webb of this city who has been spending the past six weeks at his old home in England, sailed for New York Sunday on the Lusitania. The trip will probably be made in four and one-half or five days. The sailing on Sunday of this boat marked the resumption of the normal Cunard ervice, which was the hardest hit of all by the recent strikes. The Lusitania is carrying 2,000 persons of all classes. In addition to her own bookings she is now carrying the Campania's saloon passengers. It is estimated that over 10,000 passengers will sail for the United States in the next eight days.

The steamship companies, though they denied any obligation on their part, have responded generously to appeals from those who have been detained, paying their hotel bills and expenses. The strike began because of the fear of extortionate hotel prices at the time of the coronation.

CORN STALK TIES SUGGESTED

Bloomington Man Offers Novel Substitute for Wood and Steel.

Bloomington, Ill., Aug. 28.—Utilization of corn stalks for railroad ties is the novel idea of Thomas A. Galt. He expects to go to Washington next month to lay his unique plan before James Wilson, secretary of agriculture.

For steel railway ties, composed of steel and blocks of wood, Mr. Galt proposes to substitute blocks made of compressed corn stalks. If it is possible to produce sufficient compression he is confident that a block can be obtained which will be more substantial and more lasting than wood.

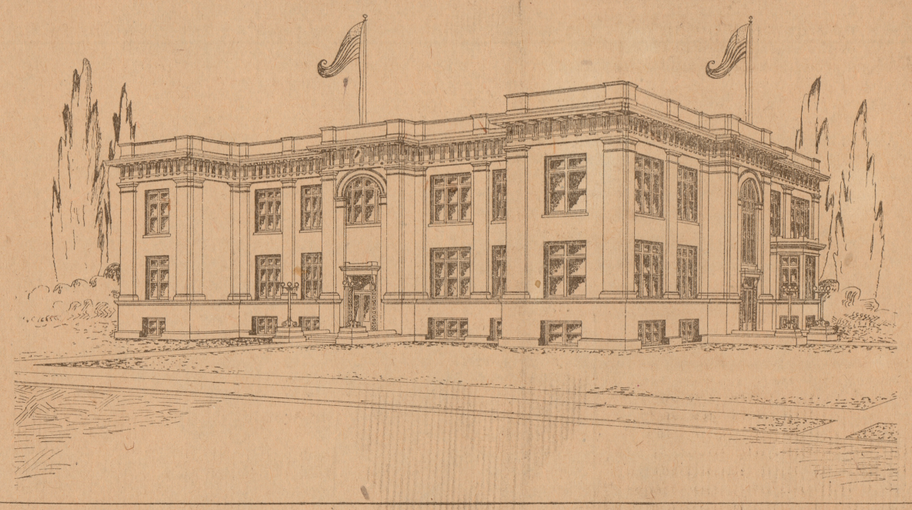
NEW STRUCTURE OF CLASSIC DESIGN PROPOSED FOR GRADES ON THE CENTRAL SCHOOL SITE



Following the action of the Annual School Meeting on July 10, the Board of Education is securing plans and estimates for the proposed new building on the Central Schol site. As was set forth in Supt. Arbaugh's report to the Board some time ago, this building is designed for grade school purposes, while the present building will be used for high school alone, making possible several extensions and additions to the work the high school is now doing. Large drawings showing the exterior, etc., are on exhibition in the window of Davis & Kishlar's store, while we present above a cut of a drawing in perspective, which shows the west and south sides of the building. In a few days drawings will be on exhibition which will show floor plans, lighting, etc. The drawings are by Architect Herman W. Pipp of Ann Arbor. The Committee of the Board having the work in charge are Guy E. Davis, D. L. Quirk, Jr., and E. D. Holmes.

The building, as will be seen, is two stories above ground, with a large, well-lighted basement story. The basement is provided with rooms for sewing, manual training, drawing, and domestic science, the latter including kitchen, dining-room, and laundry. In addition, there will be a gymnasium, locker rooms, baths, and rooms for a heating and ventilating system in the basement. On the first floor, are five class rooms, kindergarten, office, and teachers' reading and rest-room. An unusual feature of the building are the individual toilet systems for each room on the first floor. On the second floor, are four class rooms, two recitation rooms, and an assembly room seating 160 to 175 pupils. This arrangement of the rooms on the second floor is to make possible the organization of the grammar grades on the departmental plan.

The exterior walls of the building are designed to be of a gray pressed brick with terra cotta trimmings, the floors of the corridors and the stairs of terrazzo marble, and the construction throughout of such a characted as to make the building practically fireproof. Direct-indirect steam-heating with blower system is proposed. The dimensions on the outside are 152 by 96 feet, with the main entrance facing Adams street.

All in all, the building, as it is being planned, is a most modern and useful structure and would be a decided addition to the city school plant. The proposition should enlist the interest of every loyal citizen of Ypsilanti. The committee hopes to have the proposition ready to submit to a vote of the district by the first of November.

MURDER IN MID-LAKE

Jealous Man Hurls Woman from Deck of Steamer Puritan.

Holland, Mich., Aug. 28.—Insane with jealousy over the remark that she did not care to have anything further to do with or say to him, Walter Hopper, who gives his residence as Philadelphia, seized Grace Lyons of Chicago around the waist, on board the steamer Puritan, in midlake, and hurled the shrieking woman overboard.

The act was done so quickly that the startled passengers did not have time to interfere, and although a life boat was lowered within seven minutes the crew was unable to recover the body, which was drawn under by the suction of the wheel. Hopper made no resistance when placed under arrest on the charge of murder.

STRIKE TRUCE NOW ON

Kruttschnitt to Confer with Shop Workers.

President Kline and Other Labor Chiefs to Meet Him in San Francisco.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—A truce has been declared in the controversy between 25,000 shopworkers on the Harriman system of railroads and the management of those lines, which threatened to result in a widespread strike.

Julius Kruttschnitt, vice president of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific railroads, telegraphed President J. W. Kline of the International Brotherhood of Blacksmiths and Helpers, that he would meet a committee composed of the presidents of the unions involved in San Francisco this week. It is probable that the conference will be held next Thursday.

President Kline departed for the west over the Northwestern line, and will be met in Cheyenne, Wyo., by the other union chieftains, including M. F. Ryan, general president of the Car Men's Union; M. O'Sullivan, president of the International Union of Sheet Metal Workers; Joseph Franklin, president of the International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, and J. D. Buckalew, vice president of the International Association of Machinists.

Immediately after receiving the message from Mr. Kruttschnitt President Kline sent dispatches to union officials all over the Harriman system urging them to maintain peace until the conferences with Mr. Kruttschnitt has been held.

LEE CLEARS UP TRIPLE TRAGEDY

Admits Killing His Father, Mother and Brother.

ANGER MOTIVE FOR THE CRIME

Wrath Aroused by Parents' Opposition to His Intended Marriage and Refusal to Give Him Money to Set Up Housekeeping.

Evansville, Ind., Aug. 28.—William Lee, twenty-two years old, confessed that he murdered his father, Richard Lee, his mother, and younger brother Clarence at Boonville early Thursday morning and then set fire to the house in the hope of concealing the crime.

He said his motive was anger because his parents would not consent to his marriage with Mina Taylor of Newburg, which he had planned for Thursday evening, and would not give him money with which to set up housekeeping.

He has been taken to the state reformatory at Jeffersonville to prevent possible violence here.

Previously Lee had said he killed his father in self-defense with an ax after the father had murdered his wife and younger son. In his later confession he said:

"I struck for my father with an ax, but hit my mother. Then my father tried to grab me by the throat. I hit him and he fell. My father had threatened my life, and I was angry at what my mother had said."

Lee said he lit a match to see what he had done and then dropped the flaming stick on the bed where his mother's body lay.

Then he ran out to alarm the neighbors. "I would not have done this thing for anything if I had had any sense," he said.

The lives of his father and brother were insured for $700 and this would have come to him on their death and that of his mother.

TAFT REVIEWING G.A.R. PARADE WITH COMMANDER GILMAN, GEN. GRANT AND THE OLD WAR HERO, SICKLES

Rochester, N. Y., August 28.—The historic moment at the Grand Army encampment was caught by the camera just as President Taft arose to review the parade of veterans. Standing with him at the front of the reviewing stand were Major John E. Gilman, commander in chief of the G. A. R.; General Frederick Dent Grant, son of the civil war commander, and General Daniel E. Sickles, who commanded the Third Army corps at Gettysburg, where he lost his right leg. Just behind the president, slightly to his right, stood Major Archibald Butt, his military aid. Thus the old army and the present establishment were represented on the reviewing stand while the grizzled boys in blue moved past and cheered the president.

PRODUCTS FROM SEED DAY ARE EXHIBITED AT THE M.E. CHURCH

The out-of-door union service Sunday evening on the Presbyterian lawn was the largest which has yet been held. Dr. Addis Leeson preached on "The Eloquent Silence of Christ," taking as his text, "In my Father's house are many mansions." Mrs. S. E. Crawford sang a solo, "I'm a Pilgrim."

Rev. Howard Augustine preached for the second time in the Presbyterian church Sunday morning. The music, under the direction of Miss Mary Dickinson, was rendered by a quartette consisting of Miss Mary Wood, Miss Christine Erwin, Dr. Garrett and Fred Reinhardt.

At the Methodist church the products of the seeds which Dr. Leeson distributed to the children on Flower Sunday in the early spring were shown in three bouquets of asters and phlox. Next Sunday morning it is proposed that the children bring to the morning service the flowers which have bloomed from their plants.

Rev. William H. Gardam will preach at the union service next Sunday evening. The plan now is that the service shall begin at 5:30 because of the shortening of the days.

SEEK ONE WHO STARTED PANIC

Horrible Holocaust in Moving Picture Theater.

FIRE CRY CAUSED STAMPEDE

Should Person Whose Shout Was Responsible for 26 Deaths Be Found Fears for His Safety Are Freely Expressed.

Cannonsburg, Pa., Aug. 28.—Rewards have been offered for the arrest and conviction of the person who cried "fire" in the Morgan opera house here, causing a panic in which twenty-six persons were trampled to death and at least forty others hurt.

The police fear that if he is captured he will be dealt with violently, as threats are heard on all sides. A report was circulated that a suspect had been arrested. In less than five minutes 1,000 people started on a run for the little lockup, but were told that it was all a mistake and that no arrests had been made.

Cannonsburg has not yet recovered from the shock of the holocaust. The little town is alive with people. Street cars and trains brought in crowds of 50,000, many of them made a rush for the opera house to search for souvenirs.

The scenes in Cannonsburg are heart-rending. Frantic parents walk the streets, wringing their hands and tearing their hair. There are thirty-two persons, hurt in the stampede, under the doctors' care. More than ten others are known to be hurt. Most of the dead have been identified and the bodies removed to their homes. A score of funerals will take place today and Tuesday. The coroner's jury arrived in Cannonsburg from Washington, Pa., and began an investigation.

The police declared that they had sufficient evidence to convince them that the cry of fire which caused the panic was emitted by two boys in the gallery.

At the cry of fire the audience jumped to its feet, rushed toward the entrance, piling down on 200 people crowded in the passageway awaiting the end of the performance to take the places of those who had seen the show.

Immediately the narrow stairway was packed and jammed ten feet high with the dead and dying, the shrieking injured and the screaming unhurt, while the crowds of townspeople rushed to the scene and added their maddened yelling to the din of disaster and death.

As the injured persons were carried from the building they were attended on the sidewalk by physicians. Every physician for miles around had been summoned.

Mrs. Minnie Lemon, of Lawrenceville, Ind., who was one of those who escaped the stampede, is a raving maniac in the Cannonsburg hospital as a result of her experience.

Many of the mutilated, all but dismembered, bodies were gathered together at the main entrance of the building and, followed by dazed, grief-stricken crowds, were taken to the morgue.

The catostropeh fell most heavily upon the young. The sight of little boys and girls carried out dead, dying, groaning and calling for their parents was heart-rending. One after another the little bodies were released from the mass of flesh and blood that marked the awful vortex of the mad death charged stampede.

Fourteen massmeeting were held, concluding with a massmeeting at Oak Park, at which President Benjamin Ide Wheeler of the University of California was censured for his opposition to woman suffrage.

MONDAY, AUGUST 28, 1911

We are face to face with the hay fever season At the resorts where the hay fever victims are compelled to go year after year, they will not permit anybody to bring any golden-rod into the hotels. While we were on one of Les Cheneaux islands a few days ago, a prominent physician from Ann Arbor, who has a summer home there, after making the remark that that was the best known place in the world for people suffering from hay fever, added, "We do not permit a spear of goldenrod to grow upon these islands." It seems to be conceded by all that the irritation incident to hay fever is caused mainly by pollen in the air, and the pollen from ragweed and goldenrod seems to be the chief offender.

It seems to us then, that, while we cannot control the pollen which comes to us from distant places, we can control the pollen which is produced within the city limits. And we see goldenrod growing quite profusely in a good many different places in the city. Take, for example, on the south side of Sheridan avenue, between Summit street and Oakwood avenue,—we should think there is as much as half an acre of it at least growing profusely in one place. If each citizen will see to it that no ragweed or goldenrod is permitted to grow upon his premises, the air, we believe, would be materially improved in Ypsilanti within twenty-four hours. You may not be a sufferer from this disease, but those who have it are sufferers, and are driven away from home for relief, are compelled to sit in a dark room in the house and to apply such agencies of relief as have yet been devised. But it is a service which those who are not afflicted could render to those who are and which would be very much appreciated. For there will be little effectual relief for the hay fever sufferer until a heavy frost comes to the rescue here.

Cut the goldenrod and ragweed on your premises, and do it now.

"WHAT IS SOCIALISM?"

"When it is asked how the Socialist expects to get along without the Capitalist and the man of administrative talent, the answer is that the Socialist does not propose to do away with the Capitalist, but with Capital ;that, far from banishing the Capitalist, he expects to make him an active producer. And when, admitting that the Right of Recall would put an end to graft and maladministration, it is still objected that one government could not, even with popular support, properly manage so many industries, the Socialist reply is that, since one government of the people, shackled by graft, privilege and a system of political preferment, now conducts comparatively well a postal service that forms the biggest business on earth, as one company now controls virtually all the telegraphic and telephonic service in the United State, and as one small group of men—as is shown by a reference to the 'Directory of Directors'—now manages all the great trusts, all the great industries, of the country, it is only reasonable to believe that the same efficiency would exist in a government not only for and by but actually composed of the People.

The Gathering Forces.

"It is, indeed, through the progressive collapse of one sanguinely hailed reform after another that the Socialist believes the popular mind is being prepared for the reception of the theory of a complete revolution.

"The report of the Russell Sage Foundation, for example, shows that the price of living mounted beyond all normal records, that today in New York, for example, where the average family consists of the father, mother and three children, almost half of the working population are earning sums under $800 a year, or less than the very smallest sum that a year ago, was considered possible—without allowance for any radical activity or medical service—for the barest support of such a family."

The Lance.

Many military experts have derided the lance as a cavalry weapon, asserting that it is old-fashioned and cumbersome; but there are those who still believe in shock tactics and the cavalry charges. In Germany, especially, the lance, in the hands of the Prussian Uhlan, remains a formidable weapon. It recently has been pointed out, however, that the lance point often makes too deep wounds for the shaft to be withdrawn quickly, and so the lancer runs the risk of having it wrenched from his grasp in the charge. Accordingly the cavalry regiments in Germany have for some time been experimenting with a new kind of lance that carries a ball below the base of the lancehead. It is claimed that the new arm is just as effective in disabling an enemy and is free from many disadvantages.

REVIEW OF THE EXTRA SESSION, WHAT WAS DONE AND WHAT WAS NOT

Enactment of Reciprocity With Canada the Chief Accomplishment

Steel Trust Probe Attracted Wide Attention --- Congressmen as Martyrs

By JAMES A. EDGERTON.

ANY ONE who has ever been in Washington during August can realize something of the trials of the extra session of the Sixty-second congress. If Dante could have had that experience it would have given him added descriptive material for the "Inferno." Washington in August may not be the hottest city on earth, but those visiting a hotter one seldom survive to tell the tale. Any congress that would remain in the capital during the dog days must either be doing penance or exhibiting to the country a high devotion to public duty. It is literally subjecting its political faith to the trial by fire.

Washington during August is so hot that the asphalt in the streets is muddy, the walls of the public buildings give off heat waves like blast furnaces, the statues in the park take on a tense and agonized look, and the Washington monument is surrounded by tremulous and crinkling air like a hot poker. Generals Humidity and Torridity join forces and open siege. It is so hot that even graft languishes and the lobbyists flee to the seashore. To listen to a tariff discussion in such an atmosphere must approach the limit of human endurance. No wonder the members call each other liars. They are more. They are torturers. They condemn their victims to a fiery furnace and bombard them with hot air.

It must be that the southern members, being used to a warm climate and hence immune, decided to give their political opponents a foretaste of the wrath to come. Yet there is one thing against the theory. Nobody can be immune to the heat of Washington in August. I know, for I once went through it. That was fifteen years ago, but I remember it as if it were yesterday. I still perspire and shrivel up at the mere thought. So far as I know, there is not a single southern city so hot as Washington in August. If there is such a one, God help its inhabitants! After going through that sizzling experience I thought of the hereafter and decided to lead a better life. Perhaps in the present instance the southern Democrats were moved by a similar association of ideas. One cannot go through an August or even a July in Washington without being reminded of the hot place and often mentioning it by name. Probably the southern Democrats thought of where they wanted the Republicans to go and decided to give them a preliminary scorching as an earnest of this desire.

Anyway, we have a new crop of martyrs. Ordinarily a congressman is the last man we would think of in the martyr's role, but he sure played the part this time. Washington weather is often a matter of extremes, but twice a year it outdoes itself. This is on inauguration day and in August.

What Was Done.

A review of the extra session would not be complete without this advance talk on the weather. It is needed to give atmosphere to the picture. Heat, both physical and mental, is an important ingredient in the psychology of congress.

The special session was called to enact Canadian reciprocity. It did this and more—or, rather, tried to do more, but the president would not let it.

The chief subjects considered were the reciprocity agreement; the revision of Schedule K, otherwise the wool bill; the free list bill, intended to make up to the farmers some of the inequalities in the reciprocity pact; the reduction of the cotton schedule, which finally had coupled to it revision of the iron and steel schedules and some others; the statehood bill, the reapportionment of the house of representatives, direct election of senators, publicity of campaign expenditures, the Lorimer investigation, the inquiries into the steel trust and the sugar trust, the probe into the Wiley case and into the administration of the pure food law, the Controller bay investigation and the arbitration treaties with France and England.

Of these the reciprocity agreement has been passed and has gone to Canada for approval; the tariff reduction bills and statehood in its first form have been vetoed by the president; direct election of senators, the investigations and the arbitration treaties have gone over to the next session, and the reapportionment, amended statehood and publicity bills have become laws.

That is not a very large record of accomplishment, but is a big record of effort—really monumental in view of the hot weather. I presume that never since the civil war did congress undertake so much in the summer months.

Steel Trust Probe.

The investigations alone have been numerous and laborious—at least have occasioned many labored explanations. There is the steel trust probe, in which the late John W. Gates accused Andrew Carnegie of being a "bull in a china shop" and of kicking over gentlemen's agreements. Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, George W. Perkins, Charles M. Schwab, Judge Gary, a brother of Mark Hanna and other eminent citizens also testified. During the hearings the committee was afforded some rather surprising glimpses of how panics are started and stopped, how trusts absorb their competitors, how a level of prices is maintained without any general agreement thereto and how a benevolent corporation may "hold an umbrella" over the business of the country. One of the most remarkable pieces of testimony was that of Judge Gary of the steel trust, who advocated that the government fix prices, thereby making Eugene Debs and Victor Berger look like kindergarten Socialists.

Then there was the sugar trust investigation, in which Claus Spreckels told how somebody put dead rats into his sugar barrels, broke his machinery, conspired against him and scared off his trade. There was the Wiley inquiry, in which it came out that the pure food crusader had been driven into a corner where he had about as much power as an office boy. There was the latest chapter of the Lorimer case, with dark hints of $100,000 funds and odd glimpses of politics as the game is played both in Washington and Springfield. There was the state department probe, wherein a certain paper lost for years was found on the floor, indicating either that there is a trance medium in the department who can materialize paper or that the floor is not swept very often. And there was the Controller bay investigation, from which it transpired that the "Dick to Dick letter" never happened, or, if it did, that it never would happen again.

Surely this extra session hungereth and thirsteth after knowledge. It is of an inquiring turn of mind. It is going to find out things even if it has to uncover all the secret and inside history of the Republican party. Yes, and I had almost forgotten the investigation into the postoffice department and the parcels post. The papers have had little to say about this, and yet it has gone forward none the less earnestly. There were investigations all the way from Alaska to Wall street. We thought that quite a batch of these inquiries materialized during the last congress, but the way the present one is taking up the scent the chase promises to be hotter than ever.

Direct Election of Senators.

For the public at large one of the most regrettable features of the extra session was the sidetracking of the direct election of senators. This constitutional amendment passed both houses by the required two-thirds majority, but was amended in the senate in a manner the house would not accept. There is little question that the two bodies will get together in the regular session and that the measure will finally succeed, but it may be delayed too long for the state legislatures to act upon it next winter. The amendment that caused the trouble was the same one that created havoc in the last congress. At that time it was known as the Sutherland amendment, but this time was offered by Senator Bristow. It provides that the federal government shall have charge of senatorial elections. Southern Democratic senators swallowed their repugnance to this feature and voted for the bill, but the house would not have it. At the close of the extra session there were so many members of both houses absent that it was almost impossible to handle a situation of this kind, but in the regular session there is little doubt that a compromise will be reached and the amendment in some form will pass and go to the state legislatures for ratification.

The extra session broke party lines into small pieces. On reciprocity the Republican president and the Democrats of both houses were found fighting shoulder to shoulder, with only a minority of either the regular or insurgent Republicans supporting them. But on the tariff and statehood measures the lines switched and the Democrats and insurgents were together against the president and the regulars. In scarcely any case during the entire session was there a straight party fight. The Democrats were united much more closely than their opponents. In nearly every instance, at least on important measures, the Democratic vote was a unit, while that of the Republicans was divided.

What the Meaning?

What this forebodes for the future it is as yet too early to determine. The general view of the closest students of politics is that it means an independent or progressive candidate for the presidency in case the insurgents do not succeed in capturing the next Republican national convention. Certain it is that Senator La Follette maneuvered himself into a position of great power in the extra session. His voice was the voice of the senate in the tariff bill conferences. Underwood of the house and La Follette of the senate were the two men who decided the character of the wool, cotton and free list bills. That indicated a revolution in the upper house and caused the old timers to scratch their heads. Only a few years ago the Wisconsin senator not only stood alone, but was hazed whenever he tried to speak. In this session he wielded the balance of power and thus controlled the senate. Here is food for reflection and material for moral and political essays.

Session's Political Importance.

While party lines were broken, the extra session was full of presidential politics. One heard on every side the prediction that this move or that would help or hurt the president or would advance or retard Democratic or progressive chances. Such comment was especially free in relation to the various tariff bills, including reciprocity. If the tariff board reports next winter in time for tariff revision on one or two important schedules before the opening of the presidential campaign the effect of the extra session may be modified. As matters now stand the opinion in Washington is that the president will be renominated, but the breach between him and a part of the progressives has grown so wide that a walkout in the convention will result and a third ticket may enter the field. The head of that third ticket would, of course, be Robert Marion La Follette. Some of the Wisconsin senator's friends are even predicting that he will carry the national convention.

The passage of the campaign publicity bill has given gratification to all friends of good government and clean elections. It covers the campaigns of representatives and senators and provides for publicity not only after but before elections and not only in the final polls, but in primaries. At last there is hope of an end to the reign of bribery that has so long disgraced the republic.

As to the reapportionment of the house, this is so adjusted that no state loses a representative, but many gain anywhere from one to six.

$20,000,000 FOR INDIANS

That Amount to Be Realized for Choctaw and Chickasaw Lands.

Muskogee, Okla., Aug. 28.—When, on three different dates between now and Feb. 1, 1912, the United States government sells 2,378,000 acres of land belonging to the Choctaw and Chickasaw nations, the last of the unallotted lands of these tribes, together with over a million acres originally intended as a forest reserve, will have passed from the control of the red man and gone to their white brothers.

Over $20,000,000 will be realized for the members of these tribes as a result of the sale.

V. M. Locke, principal chief of the Choctaw Nation, and Governor D. H. Johnson of the Chickasaw Nation have been in Muskogee for the last few days conferring with Commissioner J. G. Wright and the negotiations have been completed.

A list of suggestions and regulations has been sent to the secretary of the interior.

GRANDSTAND COLLAPSES

Many People Injured When Seats Fall at Elgin Automobile Races.

Elgin, Ill., Aug. 28.—Just after the start of the Elgin trophy races here three sections of the grand stand collapsed, carrying 2,000 men, women and children to the ground. Thirty or more persons were injured, but no one was killed.

Many Chicagoans were hurt, among them being Mrs. Ralph R. Graham, formerly Ethel Lorimer, daughter of Senator William Lorimer, who sustained a broken left ankle, and Chief Justice Harry Olson of the municipal court, who suffered severe bruises.

The last car had just started on the first lap when spectators were horrified to see these sections begin to sag. There was a noise and the seatholders were carried to the ground at the speed of an express elevator in a high office building.

POSTAL BANK MAKES RECORD

One Silver Dollar Is Deposited in the Libertyville Institution.

Libertyville, Ill., Aug. 28. — Uncle Sam opened a postal savings bank here. The bank broke all records. Charles Taylor, the postmaster, had made preparations for a rush of depositors. He sent out notices that the bank would open at 7 a. m. and that the first in line would be given first honors. Promptly on the hour, he opened the window in the postoffice and saw a line consisting of one youth.

The youth was Harry Meyers, twenty-one years old, a worker on a farm near Libertyville. He was leaning against the wall chewing a straw. "Do you want to make a deposit?" asked Taylor. "Yep," answered Meyers, and he drew a silver dollar from his pocket and passed it through the window. Not another deposit was made all day.

SHE HAD CONSTANT PAIN

Until Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Dewittville, N.Y. — "Before I started to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I suffered nearly all the time with headaches, backaches, and bearing down pains, and had a continuous pain in my left side. It made me sick if I tried to walk much, and my back was so weak that I was obliged to wear corsets all the time. But now I do not have any of these troubles. I have a fine strong baby daughter now, which I did not have before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound." — Mrs. A. A. Giles, Route 44, Dewittville, N.Y.

The above is only one of the thousands of grateful letters which are constantly being received by the Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass., which prove beyond a doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, actually does cure these obstinate diseases of women, and that every such suffering woman owes it to herself to at least give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial before submitting to an operation, or giving up hope of recovery.

Scientific Phenomenon.

While a plumb line may be straight, it is, curiously enough, not always vertical. Irregularities of density in the crust of the globe may produce this phenomenon. A remarkable instance in point was found in the island of Porto Rico, where the deviation from the vertical is so great that in mapping the island the northern and southern coast lines, as shown in the older maps, had each to be moved inward half a mile.

One Way of Saving a Baby—Free to Try

The mother does not live who would not do all in her power to keep her child healthy, but often she does not know how. So when a doctor of standing points the way all can afford to listen.

It is an accepted fact that nine out of ten of the troubles of infants and children is intestinal. You notice it by the fact that the child is constipated, it belches, is peevish and cries. Don't give a remedy that contains an opiate, because the child will get in the habit of needing it, and don't become alarmed and run at once for a doctor.

Try a scientific laxative first. Give a small dose of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, the remedy that is intended for the use of children. It is mild, gentle and non-griping. The remedy is absolutely pure and is guaranteed in every particular. Mrs. Toomey of Emingsville, Pa., and Mrs. Fred Croms of Alanson, Mich., never give their children anything else. These are only a few among thousands of women.

You can buy a fifty cent or one dollar bottle of any nearby druggist, for they have all sold it for a generation, but if you want to test it on your child first send your address to Dr. Caldwell and he will cheerfully send you a free sample bottle.

Dr. Caldwell does not feel that the purchase of his remedy ends his obligation. He has specialized in stomach, liver and bowel diseases for over forty years and will be pleased to give the reader any advice on the subject free of charge. All are welcome to write him. Whether for the medical advice or the free sample address him Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 541 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

HEAVY HITTING THIS SEASON.

New Records Likely to Be Made In Major Leagues.

MANY EXTRA BASE DRIVES.

Seybold Mark For Home Runs May Be Beaten or Equaled Before Season Closes—Other Batting Feats May Be Overshadowed.

By TOMMY CLARK.

When the baseball season closes in October the fans will probably have new batting records to discuss. Judging from the way the batters in both the American and National leagues are hitting the ball this year, new records are sure to be made. During the present season an unprecedented number of extra base drives have been made. There is every reason to believe that new records will be established for two baggers and three base drives as well as for home runs.

Since there is something magical in the words "home run" naturally the fans throughout the country are interested in the player who manages to get the greatest number of four base drives during the season.

TY COBB, DETROIT'S HEAVY HITTER.

At the present time enthusiasts all over the country are watching the batwork of young Fred Luderus, the Phillies' first baseman, who by his batting early this year became as famous as the noted Cobb or Hans Wagner. Luderus is after the home run record made in 1899 by Buck Freeman of the Washington Nationals. Luderus recently slumped in his batting and was replaced by Bransfield, but Manager Dooin believes on his return he will regain his eye.

"Socks" Seybold holds the American league record for home runs. He established it in 1902. The former Athletic in that year made sixteen.

Luderus' record compared to those made when baseball was in its infancy might be called a joke. The game, however, has changed much since then, especially the batting and pitching. Then, too, batters played a greater part in the game than pitchers.

It is a remarkable feat today for a batter to make two home runs in one game, whereas in olden times two and three were not unusual.

However, it is a fact that one man has made seven homers in a single game. On June 12, 1867, Harry Wright, playing for the Cincinnati club against the Holt club of Newport, Ky., made that number. A year later Lip Pike made six in one contest. As late as 1874 Al Reach, Kleinfelder and Potter earned the distinction of making five in a single contest.

Ping Bodie, another young player who is making good this year in big league company, eclipsed Freeman's record of twenty-five four-base drives. Last year, when the White Sox outfielder played with San Francisco, Bodie made thirty home runs.

Ty Cobb of the Tigers is also striving for a batting record. He is after the one Hugh Duffy set up in 1894, which was .438 for 124 games.

Duffy Lewis of the Red Sox is trying his hardest to beat the record made last year by Nap Lajoie for two base drives. Last year Lajoie made fifty-one doubles. Lewis has made more than half the number. If he continues his present gait he is confident of beating Lajoie's mark.

Lajoie also holds the record for the greatest number of triples made during a season. He established it in 1903, when he registered twenty-three for the season. To date Larry Doyle, Cobb and Gree have each passed the fifteen mark.

WON TOO MANY GAMES.

Contract Called For Compensation In Number of Games Won.

A pitcher who lost his last job because he won too many games has just been signed by Joe Cantillon of the Minneapolis club and has joined the Millers. His name is Howard McClintock, and he recently worked for the Rockford club of the Wisconsin-Illinois league. He is a husky young man and throws with his right arm, relying mostly on a spitball which he thinks will soon land him in big league company.

McClintock wasn't satisfied with the salary offered him by the management of the Rockford club and proposed a contract which was accepted by the management. His contract read that he was to be paid for games he won and nothing for games he lost; also he was to be allowed to pitch whenever he felt so disposed.

The day after he made this contract he felt like pitching, and the manager sent him in. He won his game so easily that the next day he thought he would work again, and once more he won.

When he won two more games in three more days the management sent out a hurry call for him to go to the office, where a new contract was made out for him. He refused to sign and quit the team when not allowed to be paid for winning games.

Daily Helps to Health and Happiness

By GEORGE F. BUTLER, A.M., M.D.

One of the simplest and best panaceas for an attack of nerves is a hot bath. If a woman who is fatigued by the day's work finds herself unable to sleep after going to bed, she had much better take a hot bath than indulge in a drug, even of the mildest description. There is something remarkably relaxing in immersion in hot water, and unless the plunge lasts too long there is not the slightest danger of being weakened by it.

To put a time limit upon the bath is impossible, because it depends upon the original vitality of the individual. One whose strength was much lessened could not stay in the water for more than ten minutes, while for another twenty minutes is none too long. The way one feels on getting out is the best criterion, for there should be a gentle sensation of lassitude, but not that of exhaustion.

If to gain sleep is the object for which the bath is taken, everything should be prepared before getting into the water. The bed must be open and there should be a hot water bag in it to warm the sheets, that there shall be no shock of cold linen. Fresh air from an open window is a necessity, but draught is not desirable.

These details attended to, the water in the tub should be of a temperature just comfortable to the skin. After the whole body has gone beneath the surface the hot faucet must be turned on, slowly letting the temperature of the bath rise until it is as hot as can be endured comfortably. Occasionally more hot water can be added in this way, for as the skin becomes accustomed to warmth it can endure more.
